Area Towns Will Consider An SAD

The Towns of Amity, Cary, Haynesville, Hodgdon, and Linneus will vote May 13 on the question of the formation of a School Administrative District. It was announced this week. The school committees of these towns voted unanimously to make application to the State Board of Education and this application has been approved.

On March 12 the school committees and municipal officers of the five towns met to determine the number of directors for each town as follows: Amity 1, Cary 1, Haynesville 1, Hodgdon 4 and Linneus 3. There were no dissenting votes by the members of the school committees or the municipal officers as to the allocation of directors. The district plan for the erection of a modern elementary building to house students from the five towns from kindergarten through Grade 8. Hodgdon High School will be maintained as a secondary facility offering college and general business courses. There are no plans at present to expand the secondary facility into a comprehensive high school. Students taking vocational courses will continue the present policy.

Earle A. Cooper, superintendent of Union 117, is putting great emphasis on the need of such a school administrative (Please Turn To Page Two)

Local Hospitals Will Be Host To Health Program

The Maine Tuberculosis and Health Association has made plans to sponsor a program on emphysema at the Gentle Memorial Building on April 22 at 5:30 p.m. An invitation is extended to physicians, administrators, nurses, physical therapists, x-ray technicians and LPN's within Aroostook County who wish to attend.

The professional people, whom the association has chosen to present this program, are well qualified. Dr. Richard T. Chamberlain, internist, director of extended care, Thayer Hospital, Waterville, will be the first guest speaker. He has titled his lecture "The Medical Team Approach To The Care Of Chronic Lung Disease". Next on the program will be Miss Patricia Stockton, RPT, pulmonary physiotherapist, Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, discussing "Chest Physiotherapy". The final guest speaker, Mr. Francis Baker, ABIT, inhalation therapist, Thayer Hospital, Waterville, will cover "Inhalation Therapy - Its Use And Effects". Specialized equipment will be available for demonstration purposes.

The Madigan Memorial and Aroostook General Hospitals will be hosts for the conference.

May 1 Will Be Date Of Annual Spring Concert

The Houlton Community Chorus has set Wednesday, May 1, as the date for its annual spring concert. The program, based on great Broadway musicals, will feature selections from "The Music Man." Everyone knows the rousing "Seventy Six Trombones" from this show but not so well-known is the fact that the hauntingly beautiful "Goodnight, My Someone" is exactly the same tune in a different rhythm and setting, providing very effective contrast. And of course the ladies of the chorus are at their very best in the song from the same show, "Pick A Little, Talk A Little, Cheep, Cheep, Cheep."

Other Broadway shows represented will be "Gypsy," "Fanny," "The King and I," "Hello Dolly," and "My Fair Lady." These, together with several specialty numbers, will provide plenty of variety to make an interesting program for the entire family.

The entertainment, directed by Gladys Tarbell, will be presented at 8:00 p.m. on May 1, in the Houlton High Auditorium.

Councilman Hannigan States His Position On Houlton Assessing

Councilman Owen Hannigan has offered the following statement to the Houlton Pioneer Times as a declaration of his position and the reasons for assuming that position relative to the single tax assessing system now employed by the Town of Houlton.

Councilman Hannigan offers this statement in defining his position as seeking a fair tax deal for all Houlton taxpayers instead of a privileged few. He comments that this is the Houlton we hope for.

Councilman Hannigan's statement reads as follows: "At the April 8th Houlton Town Council meeting, I made a motion that Mr. Hamilton's offered resignation be accepted. It was not seconded. I did not, as stated in last week's Pioneer, second Councilman Gardner's motion that Mr. Hamilton's resignation be accepted conditionally, a fact which still leaves Mr. Hamilton on the job."

"The November 15, 1967 Houlton Pioneer Times discussion I had with Mr. Marshall Hammond, then Pioneer Times editor, referred to by Mr. Hamilton last week, was to the effect that Houlton citizens have a history going back over 150 years of being able to exercise good judgement in handling major problems for the benefit of the majority. (Witness the large square, Monument Park, library, Ricker, municipal water, sewer and power system, hospitals plus many other advantages we now enjoy, due to previous foresight.) Houlton's old Assessing Board cost the town $8,007 in 1964 and the present single assessing system has pushed the cost up to $14,356. Certainly a complete re-study including possible personnel replacement should be undertaken. I had faith last fall and I still do that all of Houlton's 'anonymous' taxpayers will vote to implement whatever steps are found necessary to obtain a fair tax deal for all. The above discussion is what led to the assessor re-evaluation 'swap'."

"In January 1965, I visited Bangor City assessor, Mr. Hazen Emery, now in Brunswick, and was advised that a Mr. Richard Hamilton was working as a fieldman on the west side of Bangor. His duties were to bring to the assessing office all necessary measurements on buildings and land plus other data to enable Mr. Emery to make an appraisal for tax purposes. In the February 4th 1965 Pioneer, Ex. Council Chairman Kendall Carson said 'Mr. Hamilton had been an appraiser for the City of Bangor for two years being responsible for real estate appraisal on the west half of the city.'"

"According to the Pioneer Times of February 25, 1965, Mr. Hamilton said: 'The valuation of property requires a detailed factual measurement with the best tools available, tempered by judgement, and reappraised regularly to keep current. He also said The Town of Houlton has realized the benefits of good property assessment over the years as witnessed by the health of the community."

"According to the Portland Sunday Telegram of October 1, 1967, Houlton's assessing practices as measured by the State Bureau of Taxation were rated at 36%. In August, 1962 under the old system it was 25%. The higher percent indicates poorer quality assessing. "Houlton is paying its single assessor $7,500 per year ($144.23 per week) now increased $450 or $152.88 per week plus expenses. This was exceeded by only six cities in Maine last year. South Portland was $7,340 last year."

"Houlton has about 1800 units of property. Mr. Hamilton has now completed 157 weeks on the job. Twelve inspections per working week or slightly over two per day would have covered the entire town. Even an attempt at property

From Bateaus To Swing Dingles . . . . .

By Virginia Hilt

How about coming with me today over to Patten for a visit with Dr. Lore Rogers and a tour of the Patten Lumberman's Museum? Last Thursday I decided that I would take a little trip over that way to see just what all this business was that people were explaining about in regard to this unique collection.

When I arrived there I heard pounding coming from the West Shed, and upon entering, I found Dr. Lore Rogers busily in the process of building a display case. Dr. Rogers is one of the curators of the museum, along with Caleb Scribner, and at the age of 93 still goes to the museum every morning and every afternoon to complete his pet projects. He received the honorary title of Doctor from the University of Maine, where he was head of the dairy products laboratory from 1902 to 1942 when he retired. He was born at Patten, however, and has lived his retirement years there. Dr. Rogers' grandfather, Luther Rogers, was the first medical doctor in that area, coming there in 1840.

The Lumberman's Museum, established about ten years ago, is maintained primarily by donations, with the Town of Patten contributing $200 a year. Last year, tourists left donations of $1,000 at the museum, even though there is no admission charge. The collections are housed in three buildings, one a log structure made with heavy timber salvaged from two log houses built about 1860 on the mountain road in Mount Chase Plantation. Since we were already in the West Shed, Dr. Rogers proceeded to tell me the background and history of each and every item housed there. This shed contains the horse drawn logging sleds, sleds and wagons, boats and other equipment used in the period before mechanization.

The first impressive piece was a large horse power treadmill which furnished power for a drag saw used in the 1890's before the gasoline engines came into being in the 1900's.

It looked like a large gang-plank just large enough for two small horses. The floor of the treadmill featured planks and as the horses walked on these the apparatus operated the saw.

There was maple sugar equipment, large storage vats for the syrup which were pulled on sleds by horses or oxen, and there was a dog sled, and three moose sleds with wide flat runners used by fur trappers and guides.

Along the back of the building there is a birch bark canoe made by an Indian and a most impressive thirty foot bateau, which looked like an overgrown row boat, that is propelled by four oarsmen and two boatmen. Overhead is a twenty foot car which was used in running rafts of lumber to mills and sawed lumber from the mills to tide water.

There is a darling punger there which Dr. Rogers told me was "the pickup truck of the lumber days." There were short pole yokes, long pole yokes and two yokes, harnesses with belis so that the driver could hear a team coming and look for a place to pull out of the road, since most roads then were one lane of traffic. The tote sleds on display had wooden runners and could carry a ton of lumber.

Currently in progress is the remodeling of the upstairs of this building which will contain a complete picture gallery of this era in question. Dr. Rogers and I then went to the main building of the museum which houses models and dioramas of the camps used in various periods of Maine lumbering, the equipment and utensils used in providing the crews with three substantial meals a day in the woods and four a day on drives; and the tools used in cutting the timber, hauling it to the water, and driving the logs to the mills.

There are working models of saw mills, and an extensive collection of the tools used by the carpenters, blacksmiths, wheelwrights and harness makers of the day. One exhibit shows the various devices used to get lumber growing on water normally flowing north into Canada into water flowing south to the Bangor market.

Just inside the door are five adorable miniature log houses, with open sections in the roofs, depicting the various quarters of a lumber camp. Everything inside is cut to scale and features everything from a "deacon seat", a long bean timber situated in front of an open fire, to tiny cooking pots on a little iron stove. Dr. Rogers explained to me that many of the camps housing the men had dirt floors but the hovels for the oxen always had log floors so they wouldn't get their feet frozen. This particular exhibit is well worth seeing, and one thing that might be of interest to you, is that all of these little camps were made and furnished by

Dr. Rogers.

A few of the other interesting things which you can see in this building are swing dingles, saws of every description from knee saws to crosscut saws, spruce gum books, a collection of cross-cut sections of native trees, a complete blacksmith shop featuring a log forge, a woods camp sink made of a hewn log, wrought iron cook pots, Dutch ovens and tea kettles, and others too numerous to mention.

Next, we went to the East Shed where there was the lar-

IN THE ANNALS OF HISTORY — Dr. Lore Rogers, one of the curators of the Patten Lumberman's Museum, is shown standing beside a huge flat stone located outside the museum which, in days gone by, was used by blacksmiths in setting an iron tire on a wooden wheel. The tire was heated and put on the felloe. It was then cooled with water and the contraction pulled the wheel together. This is just one of the hundreds of interesting items to be found at the fast growing museum located in Patten on the Shin Pond Road.

From Bateaus

(Continued From Page One) gest Lombard steam log hauler that I have ever seen. (Never having seen one as a matter of fact.) This looks like a huge railroad locomotive and weighs about 20 tons. This was the weirdest looking piece of machinery that I have ever seen and may I suggest that you go over and look at it yourself as I am quite inadequate to explain it's workings. On display too, is a gasoline version of this great big thing but is only about half its size. There is also a set of log hauler sleds in the building which can haul about three to five thousand feet of logs. Five or ten of these sleds make a train and that sure amounts to a lot of toothpicks. I saw a water cart used to wet down logging roads to make them icy, and a Holt tractor, the first tractor to be used in lumbering. All in all, it was a fascinating day and Dr. Rogers is one of the most remarkable men I have ever talked with. Who could have thought that the lumbering business could be made that interesting. From the front door of the museum, you can look over to Mt. Katahdin, which by the way, Dr. Rogers has climbed every month of the year. It is a beautiful spot just a little way in on the State Road and believe me, it is well worth your time and effort to visit at this unprecedented bit of history.

PLAZA PHARMACY

The American Indians were the world's greatest pharmacologists, along with the Chinese. From them we have got quinine for malaria, cocaine, meacoline, peyote, curbs and others. They were also good surgeons, but the Hindus and Egyptians were better. It was the Chinese to get the secret of the Chinese to get the secret. With his instruments, the high priest of the American Indian opened the chest faster and more skillfully than modern heart surgeons, since he practiced on thousands of captives. Our pharmacists too, have a fine reputation for giving professional service. PLAZA PHARMACY, Houlton Shopping Plaza, 589-6798, open Fri. Nights until 9 P. M. Announcing Chevrolet's new Torque-Drive.

Nobody else offers anything like it at the price. Torque-Drive does away with the clutch pedal. Most of the shifting, too. And for the most economy, it's available exclusively on all Camaro sizes and Chevy II Nova 4- and 6-cylinder models. Look how simple it is. You accelerate in 1st, then shift to Hi for cruising. That's all. If you like, you can even start in Hi. And accelerate from standstill to cruising speed. It's just a little slower that way.

The shift lever is conveniently located on the steering column, and there's a selector quadrant with easy-to-read indications. Park-R-N-Hi-1st. Only your Chevrolet dealer has it—clutchless driving at only $68.65.

The first no clutch one shift $68.65* transmission

NRA Takes Stand On Gun Bills

The President of the National Rifle Association tonight lashed out at those who claimed to be friends of the NRA, but refuse to support its drive for sensible and practical gun legislation.

Harold W. Gassen of Lansing, Mich., newly-re-elected president of the 960,000-member organization, characterized those who doubt such a policy as "political gun bearers for the Kennedys and the Dodds" regardless of their political affiliations.

In a speech before the banquet at the conclusion of the NRA annual meetings in Boston, Gassen called for solidarity among hunters, target shooters, conservationists, sportsmen, and gun owners who believe in the traditional American right to keep and bear arms. He urged that they join NRA to form a solid block of opposition to what he termed "the overly-restrictive provisions of the administration gun bill sponsored in the Senate by Sen. Thomas J. Dodd, D-Conn.," and he emphasized that the efforts of this solid front should be directed simultaneously at passage of two bills sponsored by Sen. Roman L. Hruska, R-Nebr., which would "keep guns out of the hands of criminals while protecting the rights of legitimate gun owners." He also called for action on a House bill sponsored by Rep. Bob Casey, D-Tex., to impose mandatory penalties on criminals who use guns in crimes.

Winning Plays Directed By Two Former Residents

Two one-act plays directed by local men won first and second places in the final competition of the State of Maine One-Act Play Contest that was held at Bowdoin College on Saturday, April 13. The Bowdoin contest was the culmination of sectional and regional contests that have been held throughout the state during the months of February and March. Fifty-six schools participated in the initial round of competition, a number from which the seven state finalists were selected.

Winning first place in the state contest was the Stephens High School production of "Dark of the Moon," an American folk legend about the Smoky Mountain girl, Barbara Allen, and her ill-fated love for her witch-boy husband. The cast of twenty-seven students was directed by Harold B. Dickinson.

Taking second place honors was the Bangor High School production of "The Ugly Duckling," directed by James H. Pike.

This year's win marks the first such honor for Stephens of Rumford since 1955. The school's production of the second act of "Madwoman of Chaillet," also under Mr. Dickinson's direction, advanced to the state final competition last year, but the school has not had a winning entry since it was given second place honors in 1957.

Bangor High School has frequently been successful in advancing productions to the state final round, winning first place in the contests of 1944, 1954, 1959, 1960, 1963 and 1964. "The Ugly Duckling" is the first play directed by Mr. Pike to receive such honors.

Both men grew up and were educated in Houlton schools. Dickinson is the son of Mr. and Mrs. M. Jerome Dickinson. He was graduated from Houlton High School in 1958 and was active in dramatic activities in Ricker College from which he received a degree in 1962. Mr. Pike, also active in local drama, was graduated from Houlton High in 1956 and from Ricker in 1960. "Dark of the Moon" and "The Ugly Duckling" will represent the State of Maine at the New England Drama Festival to be held at Rhode Island College in Providence this weekend.

This Is Campaign Week For Community Concert Assoc.

This is "Campaign Week" for the Houlton Community Concert Association. With headquarters at the Northland Hotel lobby, a score of workers are busily engaged in renewing old subscriptions and enlisting new ones for the coming 1968-69 season. A completely non-profit organization, the association depends upon continued support from the music lovers of Houlton and surrounding communities to assure a generous budget to engage bigger and better concerts. The task will be easier this year with the added incentive of a smash hit "bonus," by Varel & Bailly Company appearing on April 25th at the high school auditorium. New subscriptions entitle the holder to attend this concert along with the regularly-scheduled series of three more in the 1968-69 program.

The Varel & Bailly Company consists of eight young lively frenchmen who have an air about them too seldom seen these days, they look happy! Just as though they'd never heard of "Beatlemania" or "Rolling Stones," the group comes bounding on the stage dressed in well-tailored suits with their hair neatly trimmed and shoes gleaming. Their non-conformity is even more striking when they start to sing as the chanteurs pay attention to such details as pitch and diction. Sometimes a lone guitar accompanies them; at other times a flute or an accordion, but there's not a drummer in sight!

The program ranges from

"Dixie" and "My Fair Lady" favorites to songs of the French resistance and original compositions of their own. Props and clever pantomime are joined to brisk choreography.

The show is filled with surprises, humor, quick costume changes, merriment and utterly flawless musical interpretation and moves along at a swift pace. Voices are strong, undistorted and free-flowing and the listener hears good blends and vocal work of an impressive caliber. They can only be described as "youth having a ball." Six months of every year is spent doing concert and TV appearances in North America where they have appeared on Hollywood Palace, Ed Sullivan and other top shows.

Memberships in the association are available this week only, $8.00 for adults, $3.00 for students.

do pennies make a difference in your food bill?

You bet they do.

And we should know.

We built our business by saving pennies for generations of folks like you.

For instance, take our policy on multiple-priced items.

If an item is priced 3 for 25¢, the price for one is obviously 9¢.

But what happens if you want two?

Do you pay 2 times 9¢ or 18¢?

Not at A&P.

We sell it at 2 for 17¢.

That's the fair way—the A&P way.

Yes, in the food business...

in food budgeting, pennies make a difference.

We watch them for you and for us.

Is this a good reason for shopping A&P? It's one of many.

Biologists Question Poison Baits

A recent news release by the State Biologist's Association pertaining to the rabies control program placed in operation by the State Department of Health and Welfare has offered some very sound proposals to evaluate the success or failure of the use of poison baits.

The news release was written from the point of view of a biologist. It states that they are well aware of the seriousness of rabies as a disease and that the disease is a menace to public health. They recognize the effective action of public health agencies in reducing the threat of rabies to almost nothing. Only one case of rabies among humans was reported in the U.S. last year.

The release further points out that 15% of the humans bitten by rabid animals and who do not receive treatment, contract the disease. It is noted that with prompt medical attention, the mortality rate is reduced to about 1%.

The biologists are concerned with the present poison program in two areas. First, what is the real measured effectiveness of a poison bait campaign and secondly, is the current control program designed to yield the data necessary to evaluate its success or failure.

The first question that seems necessary for an answer, is how many foxes are actually killed by poisoning. In 1966 the Department of Health and Welfare estimated a kill of 2,000 foxes while the Fish and Game Department estimated a kill of 273.

Health and Welfare officials estimated that 90% of the present baits will be taken by foxes. Yet, a study, as outlined in the release of a similar program conducted in Tennessee showed that of 1,179 baits only 65 were known to be taken by foxes. Dogs, cats, rodents, birds and unknown agents accounted for the balance.

The conclusion reached by the biologists is that a survey should be made of the effectiveness of the program in view of the opposition that has been given and expressed of poison baiting. It is their opinion that a survey should be made of all future programs and data made available to evaluate the action taken.

They further contend that the decision regarding such programs should be made by the Fish and Game Department, in consultation with the Department of Health and Welfare. They suggest qualified field crews be made available to determine the results. The conclusion of the release states that "unless these steps are taken, our control programs will remain uncertain, unscientific and open to continued serious criticism".

We agree.

Views of Other Editors

Never Surrender!

Cause and effect belong not to physical phenomena. But, as Shakespeare observed, what people think frequently "makes it so" in their experience. And just now some medical observers are believing that the onset of disease frequently follows a mental thought-process, the process of "giving up". That is to say, the responding to a loss or a feared loss with feelings of hopelessness.

A team of physicians at the University of Rochester Medical Center has been exploring, in interviews, the relationship between psychological attitudes on the part of the patient and the development of illness.

Of the 191 unselected patients, being treated for various problems ranging from infections to cancer and diabetes to nerve, some 80 percent, according to the New York Times, "had recently experienced a loss to which they have responded with feelings of giving up." A divorce, perhaps, or a family loss.

One doctor commented that "man is constantly interacting within his many environments... from the subcellular and biochemical to the most external or peripheral, that of family, work and now even his universe".

But the findings make clear that it is how a person responds and reacts to the troublesome circumstance that determines his well-being. Thus another doctor observed that it was not the magnitude of the event that was determinative, but whether it seemed to cause the person to "give up". A minor event, such as the loss of a pet, might be more impressive to someone than the loss of a job or a home.

All of which would seem to confirm that man indeed does not live by bread alone, but by the quality of his thinking. If one can manifest courage and joy and trust in good - no matter what the mortal circumstance - then no setback can produce a "giving up - given up complex." And cannot one express courage and joy and trust in good if he is intelligently aware of the meaning of such Bible assurances as this from the 91st Psalm:

"He shall give his angels charge over thee, to keep thee in all thy ways".

"A Private Disgrace"

By Dorene L. MacIroy, Asst. Lib.
Cary Free Public Library

Lizzie Borden took an ax
And gave her mother forty whacks;
When she saw what she had done
She gave her father forty-one.

It doesn't really matter that the murdered woman was Lizzie's stepmother, not her mother, and that by actual count, Mr. Borden suffered only ten blows instead of the forty-one so often quoted from this list of doggerel. It is typical of the inaccuracies and distortions surrounding the famed case, however, which occurred in Fall River, Massachusetts in 1892.

Ever since her acquittal in 1893, Lizzie Borden and her deadly hatchet have fascinated criminology students and writers. Much has been written about the case, and for a number of years the Boston Globe ran articles that suggested that "the murderer or murderers" might still be at large.

That possibility is firmly squelched by Victoria Lincoln in her new book, "A Private Disgrace". The author is native of Fall River and feels that as an "insider" and as a woman, she is more qualified to interpret the facts than some who have already done so.

It is obvious that the good people of Fall River felt without a doubt that Lizzie was guilty of the double murder. It is also obvious that many details of the case were suppressed by the townspeople who regarded the crime as its "private disgrace" and preferred not to have its dirty linen washed in public.

When Lizzie's name began to be bandied about at school, Miss Lincoln asked her mother why. Her mother replied, "Well, dear, she was very unkind to her father and mother."

The Borden case is bound to remain one of the most perplexing in American crime. "A Private Disgrace" does answer a nagging question or two and throws some fresh light on the main characters. Lizzie's cloak of mystery is being stripped away!

Coal Industry Expanding

There's a popular conception in the country today that the coal industry is dead. That's so far from the truth.

In actuality, the mining and transportation of coal is now contributing almost $3 billion a year to the national economy and this is increasing at the rate of $200 million a year.

A survey recently made by the coal industry shows that companies are opening new mines and expanding capacity at a record rate to meet the growing demand for coal, particularly for electric power generation.

This same survey reveals that since 1965 electric utility companies throughout the nation have completed, started construction on or announced plans for 81 million kilowatts of new coal fired capacity with an expected consumption of 205 million tons of coal annually.

This compares to about 40 million kilowatts announced for new nuclear plants, but some of these are long lead-time orders placed to get on the manufacturers' future production schedule. Several of these plants, however, are not scheduled to go into production for at least eight years.

Coal Aids Economy

Here are some statistics developed in the survey that give a good picture of the coal industry:

Coal production, transportation and utilization in 1966 provided direct employment to 220,653 workers.

Wages totaled $1.5 billion a year.

A total of $1.1 billion was paid out in coal producing areas for services and supplies to support production and transportation activities.

More than $134 million was paid in state and local taxes.

For every $100 million of coal sales, additional sales of $85 million are generated in other industries areas of the economy.

For every 10 jobs created in the coal industry, eight jobs will be required directly and indirectly elsewhere to support the coal industry and supply it with goods and services.

To meet the demand for electric power, which is expected to increase by the year 2000 to nine billion kilowatt hours annually, from 1.1 billion kilowatt hours in 1966, electric utility companies are recognizing in their expansion plans the vital role coal must play.

The 205 million tons of coal which the new plants will consume annually is about 40 percent of the current annual production of 549 million tons and almost equal to the 272 million tons consumed by electric utilities in 1967.

Coal Mining Increasing

The new mines and expanded capacity announced by the industry since 1965 will produce about 130 million tons annually when in full production and will provide jobs for about 19,000 miners.

Strangely enough, there is a shortage of coal miners in the coal regions of poverty - stricken Appalachia. But the need today is for skilled miners, not the pick-and-shovel coal miner of yesterday.

Look at some other statistics developed by the survey:

In its more than 21 years of existence, the industry - financed United Mine Workers Welfare and Retirement Fund has paid about $2.3 billion to retired workers in pensions, hospital care and other benefits, covering both miners and widows and orphans.

Exports of coal earn about $500 million a year in international trade. This is of utmost significance in our balance of payments problem.

Here's what Joseph E. Moody, president of the National Coal Policy Conference, has to say:

"As significant as are these statistics, the true importance of coal to the Nation lies in the fact that it is essential to the nation's continued industrial expansion and growth. Coal today generates about 65 percent of all of our steam-generated electric power. Without coal, our great steel mills and cement plants could not supply the growing expansion needs of the nation, and many other basic industries would be crippled."

"All segments of this great industry must share in the credit for the present healthy state of the industry. Through cooperation, we have overcome great obstacles."

Coal, as you can see, is on the way up.

The Editor's Corner

Some of us were recently asked to sign a petition that would request the powers that be to permanently establish day-light saving time as the permanent time for the United States. This movement is one that we would endorse. The changing of time was probably once a practical approach to the economic needs of our country. Today there is little to be gained by the change. In our opinion, an extra hour of daylight at the end of the winter days would be more acceptable than gaining it in the morning.

The transportation industry is not at all opposed to establishing one permanent time. The cost of printing changes in schedules reflects on the overall charges that we pay for transportation. It would seem that the railroads and the airways would be strongly in favor of one time.

While this topic concerns uniformity, let's consider the fact that there are a great number of people that favor uniform holidays as well as a uniform time.

Massachusetts has become the first state to legalize uniform Monday holidays. Starting next year, the Bay State will observe on Mondays, Washington's Birthday in February, Patriot's Day in April and Memorial Day in May.

The move towards uniform holidays is strongly supported by the National Chamber of Commerce. Legislation was introduced at the federal level to have certain holidays observed on Mondays, but by the time additions were made to the original bill, it was shelved.

The objections that have been heard to the proposed uniformity of time and holidays seem to be mostly objections to change. There are some very good reasons why we should make the change, and not just for the sake of changing. The long weekend would be attractive to all, businesses as well as customers. A standard time is acceptable to most for the same reasons.

It is our hope that national legislation will create uniform laws to apply to both.

The agenda of the 14th annual Maine Highway Safety Committee Conference scheduled for Saturday, April 27 will offer a special program dealing with a mechanical device that clocks speeding automobiles coming in the opposite direction, and computer inquiry that allows a police officer to know the complete driving record of an operator within seconds.

With the advance of science in the field of traffic control, indications are that you had better be right in the first place and not try to tell anything but the truth afterwards.

Age Discrimination To Be Illegal

By Bert Mills

Washington, D. C. - Arbitrary discrimination by employers against older workers or job applicants will become illegal on June 12, 1968, when the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967 becomes effective.

No longer will it be possible for an employer to discharge a worker who has not reached 65 on grounds that he or she is too old. Nor will it be legal for a company to refuse a job to an applicant who is over 40, for reasons of age.

Public Law 90-202, enacted December 15, 1967, states that: "It is therefore the purpose of this Act to promote employment of older persons based on their ability rather than age; to prohibit arbitrary age discrimination in employment; to help employers and workers find ways of meeting problems arising from the impact of age on employment."

Congress passed this law because some companies get rid of older workers before they are 65 for no reason except age. Also, some firms refuse to hire anybody who is over 40, partly because of pension liabilities or other employee benefit programs.

The new law has teeth. Those who violate it, and coverage extends to labor unions and employment agencies, can be haled into court and punished. Employees wrongfully fired can gain retroactive payment of wages, plus liquidated damages in the case of willful violations.

Small Businesses Will Be Exempt

The law contains a small business exemption. An employer is defined as "a person engaged in an industry affecting commerce who has 25 or more employees..." The act also applies to employment agencies of any size and to unions with 25 or more members.

The law recognized that not everybody under 65 is capable of handling a particular job. Thus the ban on age discrimination does not apply "where age is a bona fide occupational qualification reasonably necessary to the normal operation of the particular business."

Uncle Sam cannot guarantee that all who can work until retirement will have a job but the new law does remove some barriers to involuntary unemployment for those over 40 but not necessarily over the hill.

"Help-wanted" columns in newspapers will be affected. The statute says: "It shall be unlawful for an employer, labor organization, or employment agency to print or publish... any notice or advertisement relating to employment... indicating any preference, limitation, specification, or discrimination based on age."

The law will not affect a bona-fide seniority system or employee benefit plan so long as the plan is not a subterfuge to evade the Act. However, no employee benefit plan "shall excuse the failure to hire any individual." The law also permits firing a worker "for good cause" but excludes age as a cause, if less than 65.

Labor Dept. To Enforce

Enforcement of the age discrimination act will be handled by the U. S. Department of Labor. It has published a free leaflet explaining the law. Single copies may be obtained from field offices of the Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Division, at least one located in each state. The pamphlet is WHPC Publication 1230.

The law directs the Secretary of Labor to undertake an education and research program "with a view to reducing barriers to the employment of older persons, and the promotion of measures for utilizing their skills." Another stated objective is "expanding the opportunities and potentials of older persons."

Another provision of the statute requires the Secretary of Labor to recommend to Congress by next December "any measures he may deem desirable to change the lower or upper age limits." This suggests that the minimum of 40 and maximum of 65 may be changed later.

Uncle Sam cannot guarantee that all who can work until retirement will have a job but the new law does remove some barriers to involuntary unemployment for those over 40 but not necessarily over the hill.

Poet's Corner

Spl/4 Larry D. Morgan, son of Mrs. Mavis Morgan of Sherman Mills, with the United States Army in Bongson, Vietnam, recently put his thoughts about protesters on paper and sent the following to his cousin, Miss Ginger Morgan in Sherman Mills.

"Take a man, put him alone, put him 12,000 miles from home. Empty his heart of all but blood, make him live in sweat and mud. This is the life in Vietnam I live.

"Place to you is your easy chair, but you don't know what it's like over here. You have a 'ball' without even trying, while over here we are fighting and dying.

"You burn your draft card and plant your signs on the White House lawn, use your drugs and have your fun, and then refuse to use the gun. There's nothing else you can do, and yet I'm supposed to die for you.

"I will hate you 'til the day I die, you make me hear my buddy's cry. I saw his arm a bloody shred. I heard them say, 'This one is dead'. It's a large price he had to pay, not to live another day. He had the guts to fight and die; he paid the price but what did he buy? He bought your life by living his, but who cares how a soldier lives? His wife, maybe, parents, even sons, but they are about the only ones."

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE

The Lesson-Sermon to be read this Sunday in all Christian Science churches is titled "Doctrine of Atonement." It includes this verse from John: "For God sent not his son into the world to condemn the world; but that the world through him might be saved." Among passages to be read from the denominational textbooks, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mary Baker Eddy is the following: "Every pang of repentance and suffering, every effort for reform, every good thought and deed, will help us to understand Jesus' atonement for sin and aid its efficacy; but if the sinner continues to pray and repent, sin and besorcery, he has little part in the atonement, in the at-one-ment with God, for he lacks the practical repentance, which reforms the heart and enables man to do the will of wisdom."
